Do you have the expertise and resources to adequately investigate work place incidents?

ERGOSH consultants have extensive experience in incident investigations. They are able to conduct comprehensive investigations into work place incidents and identify the root causes and contributing factors. The consultant will be able to recommend effective and practical controls to prevent further incidents of that nature occurring in the future. The consultant will also be able to identify issues that may lead to prosecution.

ERGOSH can provide training in incident investigation and implementation of recommendations so that your employees will be able to conduct investigations in the future and recommend appropriate control measures.
