

PLANT ASSESSMENTS

Is your organisation complying with the occupational health and safety legislation concerning the use of plant in the work place?

Have you assessed your work place to determine whether there are hazards associated with the use of your plant?

ERGOSH consultants are able to conduct assessments on plant used at your workplace. The consultant will then assess the risk associated with any identified hazards and provide detailed recommendations.

Guidance can be provided on the guarding requirements for machines as specified in AS 4024 – Safeguarding of Machinery. Direction can also be given in relation to safe systems of work including isolation and tag out procedures.

If required ERGOSH can also provide training to inform and instruct employees on plant assessment obligations in order for those persons to be able to conduct effective plant assessments in the future.
